

readData is the fileHandler which you don't need to worry about as it's controlled from the base class. It reads the next chunk of data, based on predefined window size and overlap settings

This loop continues until we've gone from the beginning of the file to the end

